Prone - Prone characters are limited to 1 pace of crawling movement and performing an action. Prone characters may stand by forfeiting either her movement or her action. If she forfeits her movement, any action suffers their running movement penalty . Prone characters suffer a -1 to all physical defensive proficiencies except Evade, which is granted a +1 proficiency bonus as the character is slightly less able to defend herself against physical attacks, but presents a smaller target at range. Prone characters suffer a -3 to all physical offensive proficiencies except Shoot, which is granted a +1 proficiency bonus as the character is hampered by being less mobile but is better prepared for firing at targets from a stable position.
Sluggish - A character that is sluggish will lose her initiative stones during any round of combat, suffer a - 2 to all proficiency tests, -2 stones to all feats, and are limited to walking movement. A sluggish character may not activate or use interrupt based powers or effects.
Stun - If a character is Stunned, she suffers a -2 offensive and -1 defensive proficiency penalty for the duration. During this time, the character may not activate or use interrupt based powers, or effects, and cannot sprint.

Status Effects

Status Effects are either willing or unwilling changes to your character's condition that confer a restriction, a bonus, and/or a penalty based on the status effect applied.

Blind - Blinded Characters suffer a -3 to melee attacks and defenses, and a -6 to ranged attacks requiring a target and defenses, unless they have something that negates this penalty. Physical contact with the target eliminates this penalty. You can not Sprint while Blinded.

Darkness - Darkness applies the Blind status to anyone inside the effect unable to see through it. Already Blinded characters are unaffected by Darkness.

Daze - If a character is Dazed, she has a -2 offensive and -1 defensive proficiency penalty for the duration. Being Dazed is not as serious as being Stunned. A character may use the first of her Dazed actions to clear her head if she wishes, doing nothing else during that turn except walking movement. Doing so will take that entire turn, but it eliminates the penalty of being Dazed. During this effect, the character may not activate or use interrupt based powers or effects, and cannot sprint.

Fear - A character that is inflicted with Fear cannot willingly move closer to the source of this effect. Additionally, while within sight of the source, you suffer a -2 to all proficiencies and -2 stones to all feats.

Grabbed - A Grabbed character is unable to move willingly, and their movement is considered to be 0. If they wish to target anyone other than their Grabber, they suffer a -2 penalty to that action. Excluding metaphysical attacks that do not physically manifest, attacks against the grabbed character that miss have a chance to hit the grabbing character.

Grabbing - Characters that are Grabbing are considered to have one (or more) of their hands occupied, and such may not use two handed weapons or conduct activities that require both hands. They may not move more than , and if they move out of Touch range of their target, they may make an opposed Str check to drag their Grabbed target along, else this condition ends when you are no longer able to touch the target. Excluding metaphysical attacks that do not physically manifest, attacks against the grabbing character that miss have a chance to hit the grabbed character.

Knocked out - A character that is knocked out is unconscious but is not automatically reduced to 0 psyche. The character is unable to take actions or movement and is unaware of her surroundings. Unconscious characters are vulnerable to Deathblows. During this time, the character may not activate or use interrupt-based powers or effects.

Lame - A Lame character may not run or sprint. Any powers that grant them a bonus to sprinting speed instead grant that to their walking speed.

Mute - Mute characters may not speak, sing, whisper, grunt, whistle or make any coherent noise that requires air passing from the lungs. Mute characters are also prohibited from using powers that require vocalization.

Panicked - Panicked characters suffer the effects of Fear. Additionally, they must make a WIL save determined by the source, or be forced to move their full sprinting movement away from the target.

Special Effects

Special Effects can only be used with the Strike, Thrust, Throw, Shoot, Dodge, and Parry proficiencies.

To attempt an offensive special effect, an untrained characters suffers a -2 proficiency penalty and deals no damage. A trained* character chooses one or the other. To attempt a defensive special effect, an untrained character suffers a -2 penalty and takes 2 psyche damage. A trained character chooses one or the other. Apply one of the following detrimental effects to the target.

- Knock Down - Target is knocked prone
- Throw/Knockback - Target is moved 2 paces in any direction. If using Throw or Shoot, direction must be away from user
- Disarm - Target is disarmed of user's choice of held item.
- Grab - May not be used with Throw or Shoot. Applies Grabbed Status
- Stunning Blow - Target is stunned.
- Crafty Defense - Only Dodge or Parry. Attacker takes damage equal to user's AGL bonus.

* Training refers to the user of a proficiency in which the corresponding skill is level 1 or higher.
* If there is good reason, a GO may lift/add restrictions

Dual Wielding - For Shoot, Thrust, Throw, and Strike attacks, a character can choose to make two simultaneous attacks if equipped to do so (i.e. two swords/firearms/etc), or unarmed. Against separate targets, each attack is resolved independently and the attacker's proficiency for both attacks is 6 less then normal. Other penalties may reduce it further. When both attacks are against the same target, resolve them as a single attack with the proficiency 3 lower then normal (and other penalties may reduce it further). If successful, the attack deals +1 damage.

The attacker may not activate special effects or powers during turns that include simultaneous attacks.

Healing: Heals one point of Health, Blood and Psyche
Rejuvenation: Heals one point of Health, Blood, Psyche and Vitality
All types of healing are subject to several limitations in addition to the max scores for each secondary stats.
1) A character cannot heal to greater then their max score
2) A character cannot recover an amount of health or Blood greater then their current Vitality. Aeternari are immune to this restriction
3) Vampyres do not gain Blood from points of healing or rejuvenation and Aeternari do not gain Vitality from points of rejuvenation. Immunity to one aspect of the restrictions does not imply immunity to the others
